Fair Moving on Schedule with Big Turnout for Second Day

Fayette County farm boys and girls getting their livestock ready for the shows make a scene typical of the Fair and its main objectives—education in farming for farm youth and development of agriculture. The photo above shows Esther Marting grooming her Hereford calf for the yearling 4-H class and the junior yearling open class. The top photo at right shows George Trimmer, a June graduate at Washington C. H. High School, getting his sheep ready for the critical eye of the judge and the picture at lower right shows John Melvin, 14, scrubbing his 8-month-old, 840-pound calf for the beef breeding class in 4-H competition. John is a member of the Madison Livestock Club.

Fayette County's big Fair entered the second day auspiciously, with everything moving along on schedule, and Fair patrons thoroughly enjoying the wide range of attractions of the greatest county exposition ever staged here.

A light rain and threatening weather early Tuesday night, reduced the numbers attending the night session, and also lessened the grandstand crowd, but those who saw the Klein organization's show were delighted with the performance.

The grounds are in excellent condition, and even the heat was tempered with cooling breezes, Wednesday, making the day a typical one for the annual event which is always looked forward to and enjoyed by thousands of people, many of whom feel that it is their chief relaxation and vacation of the year.

The grounds police force, organized by Sheriff Orland Hays, was working smoothly, and the parking problems are made as easy as possible, with no cars blocking other cars, when instructions are followed.

Wednesday the work of judging was proceeding in nearly all departments, with experts in their various lines placing the ribbons.

The 4-H cattle show and some of the open classes of cattle were being judged Wednesday, and a sizeable crowd was watching the judging.

While judges were busy in the livestock departments, other experienced judges were going over the other exhibits and making awards.

R. R. Starbuck, of the extension dairy department, OSU, was in charge of judging the dairy cattle. Wolford Powell of Newark, was placing ribbons in the corn, vegetable and fruit departments, and C. C. Linerode, and Mrs. Linerode, of Canton, were judging Grange exhibits.

In the Merchants building the largest flower exhibit ever seen on the grounds, was being judged by Will Hall, of Elyria, who also judged the flower show and some other exhibits here 45 years ago.

"I remember the time very clearly, for I picked up typhoid fever here at that time" Hall said in recalling his judging in 1904.

The race track was almost in perfect condition Wednesday afternoon for the opening race program, and at the noon hour the crowd was starting to pour into the grounds for the racing and afternoon session.

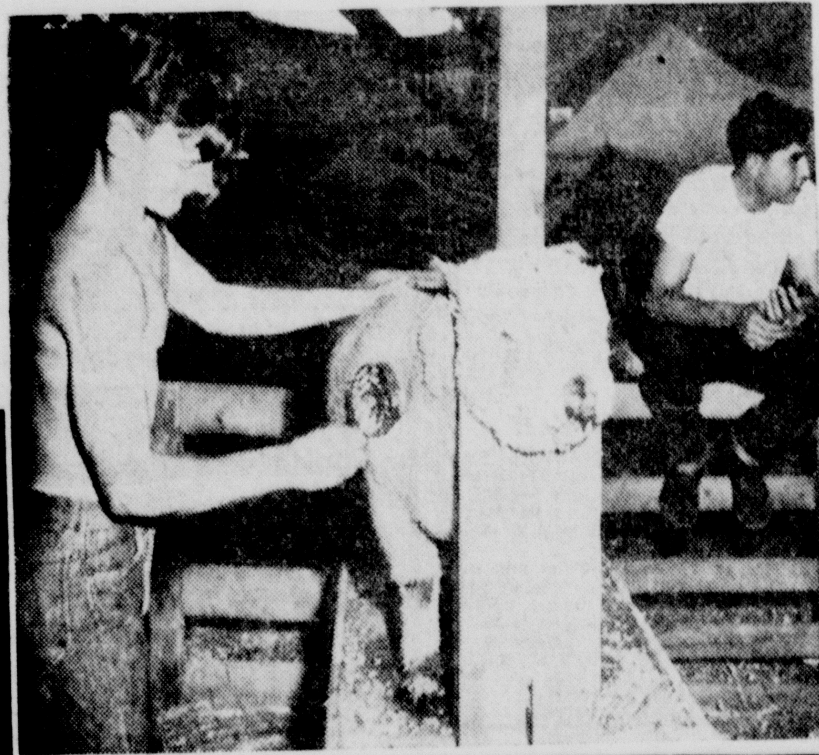

Innumerable interesting exhibits are attracting much attention of fair patrons, and the big display of farm machinery, autos, and other products, are heavily patronized.

All of the newest equipment for modern farming, as well as latest styles in automobiles are on display in surprisingly large numbers.

The 4-H Club displays under the grandstand are drawing their share of attention, and reflect the remarkable skill of many of the members in the various clubs.

Klein's Rhythm Revue is scheduled for Wednesday evening's performance in front of the grandstand, starting at 8 P. M.

The midway attractions are doing an unusually large business, the food and concessions serving lunches and soft drinks also are sharing in the large business.

Compromise Urged On Farm Program

Senators of Both Parties Agree To Draft Bill Without Brannan

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—Senators of both parties agreed today to try to work out a new compromise on farm legislation — minus the help of Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

Senator Anderson (D-N.) said he has two drafts of possible bills ready for a closed-door session of the Senate agriculture committee (9:30 A. M. EST).

Senator Aiken (R-Vt.), top-ranking GOP member of this committee, said in a separate interview he will cooperate in a non-partisan effort to pass a farm bill at this session of Congress.

Mrs. George Bruce Brookline Franklin, who has been here with friends and relatives for the past couple of weeks, will be going back to her home in Boston soon to join her husband, Dr. George Franklin. He had planned to come here with her but had to give up the trip because of illness.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Franklin have retired from their lifelong work in the field of education. Dr. Franklin was professor of English literature at Boston University and Mrs. Franklin, one of the most illustrious daughters of Washington C. H., was dean of women there. Both had been associated with the school for 22 years before their recent retirement.

Mrs. Franklin is one of Ohio Wesleyan University's most prominent alumnae. The Ohio Wesleyan Magazine (Delaware, O.) said of her in its notes on graduates of the class of 1904:

"Lucy Dean Jenkins Franklin probably has more 'high-falutin' degrees than anyone else in the class. She has an L.H.D. from each of three colleges—Colby College, Evansville College and Ohio Wesleyan, and an L.L.D. from Bowdoin Green University. Dr. George Franklin, whom she married in 1910, is a Harvard graduate and was professor of English in Boston University where Dr. Lucy was dean of women for many years. It would take a page to tell about her many interests and activities which were as wide and varied as Mrs. Roosevelt's and called for intelligent and brilliant leadership in many ways. Bishop Welch remarked at the alumni luncheon held at the General Conference session in Boston in 1943, 'If she had been a man, she would have been elected a bishop.' The Franklins have one son Robert. They are both retired and spend a good part of the year traveling."

Arsonist Believed Responsible For Fire

CINCINNATI, July 27—(AP)—Fire Chief J. Houston said yesterday he was convinced a fire which partially destroyed a car barn of the Cincinnati Street Railway Co. was the work of an arsonist. Houston said he believed the company's loss estimate of $150,000 for the blaze which destroyed 17 street cars was "much too high." The arson squad is continuing its investigation.

Fayette County Takes Lead

Course in Human Relations Planned for County Schools

Fayette County takes the lead again.

In a new course to be introduced in the Fayette County schools in September, some children in the sixth through the ninth grades will have classes taught around stories like this:

"Abraham Lincoln built a great life on failure and disappointment. He was defeated when he ran for the Legislature in Illinois. He was defeated when he ran for the nomination for Congress.

"He lost when he ran for the U. S. Senate. And he lost when he ran for vice president.

"He went into business and failed, and then spent years paying off his debts. He became engaged to be married and his fiancée died.

"This would have broken the spirit of a lot of men. But Lincoln learned from it and became great. He learned to lose gracefully. He built up perseverance and determination. He gained confidence in himself by not letting misfortune get him down."

Miss Margaret Baker Denies She Resigned

Miss Baker declared flatly she was not present at a meeting in Columbus of women members of the state committee during which she was reported to have resigned.

Milk Delivery Strike Called Off

CINCINNATI, July 27—(AP)—There were milk deliveries as usual today in the greater Cincinnati area.

A contract between truck drivers, represented by a local of the Teamsters International Union (AFL), expired last midnight but members of the union voted at a mass meeting to call off an authorized strike. No definite time had been set for the walkout but the strike could have started at midnight and thus cut off milk deliveries from 45 dairies.

Numbers Racket Investigation Is Shifted Back to Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, July 27—(AP)—Tight-lipped New York officials are to fly back today with a Cincinnati banking official they say figured in a crooked $50,000,000 numbers racket.

Augustus Marchetti, assistant New York district attorney, declined to say when he would leave here with Dennison Duble, resigned secretary-manager of the Cincinnati clearing house. The New Yorkers checked out of their hotel last night.

Duble is one of 17 taken into custody. New York officers in the east rounded up a group that included Irving Bitz, 46, identified as a key figure in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, and Anthony Strollo, called "one of the top underworld figures in the east."

Marchetti said previously that Duble rigged Cincinnati clearing house figures so that it was more difficult for numbers players to win. He declined to discuss the case further.

Duble's attorney's met yesterday with Marchetti. They announced after the meeting that the banking official will go to Cincinnati.

Waddle Resigns Unexpectedly As Principal of Central School

Washington C. H. High School today has a new principal, but the School Board unexpectedly found itself in the position of looking for a principal of the Central Elementary School.

Arthur E. Wohlers was given a one-year contract as high school principal by the School Board at its meeting Tuesday night. His salary is $4,250 a year.

But no sooner had that been done than Joseph Waddle submitted his resignation as principal of the Central School. It was accepted.

Lawyer Shot By Judge in Divorce Row

ATLANTA, July 27—(AP)—An Atlanta judge early today shot down a lawyer, his opponent in a tangle of divorce suits and other legal actions.

At about 2:30 A. M. police reported, Fulton County civil court Judge Robert Carpenter, 44, pulled his car alongside one driven by Attorney John Lockwood, 53, and fired at him five times with a pistol.

One shot wounded the lawyer in the face. He ran from the car and tumbled into a muddy, 40-foot deep hole. A hospital later reported his condition was fair.

Carpenter and Lockwood were former business associates, but in recent months had become bitter opponents in nine court actions.

The judge was sued for divorce by his wife, Mrs. Helen Carpenter, who charged cruelty. She also filed (Please turn to Page Two)

Woman Survives Leap from Bridge

NEW YORK, July 27—(AP)—A 20-year-old girl plunged from the Brooklyn bridge, landed in the East River about 100 feet below and was alive today—one of a few to survive the leap.

The girl, Grace Cakouras, of 1111 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, was listed in fair condition at Cumberland Hospital, Brooklyn.

She was pulled from the water by the crew of a tugboat. Police said she was discharged last week from the observation ward at Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. FDR Answers Cardinal Spellman

HYDE PARK, N. Y. July 27—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told Francis Cardinal Spellman today in answer to his charges of "anti-Catholicism" that she would "continue to stand for the things in our government which I think are right."

She told the Cardinal in a letter: "I have no bias against the Roman Catholic Church."

She added: "I have no intention of attacking you personally, nor of attacking the Roman Catholic Church, but I shall, of course, continue to stand for the things in our government which I think are right."

"They may lead me to be in opposition to you and to other groups within our country, but I shall always act, as far as I am able, from real conviction and from honest belief."

Her letter to the Cardinal, archbishop of New York, was a formal reply to his charges last Friday that she had a "record of anti-Catholicism" and his denunciation of her opposition to federal aid for parochial schools.

Cardinal Spellman said Mrs. Roosevelt aligned herself with the backers of the Barden Bill in her June 23 column and two others. Mrs. Roosevelt publicly denied any bias in her column last Monday.

In her reply today Mrs. Roosevelt declared: "I have never advocated the Barden Bill nor any other specific bill on education now before the Congress I believe, however, in federal aid to education."

Overcome By Heat

Surplus Crops Key To Aid Row

Arms for Europe Also Discussed

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—Supporters of a move to force the Economic Cooperation Administration to spend $1,500,000,000 for surplus American farm products in the European Recovery Program won a first-round victory in the Senate today.

The initial test on the hotly disputed amendment of Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) came on a technical parliamentary question and gave a 54 to 32 vote edge to backers of the proposal.

A final decision will come later when the amendment itself, which would require the army to spend an additional $500,000,000 on surplus farm goods, is voted on.

The Senate accepted without a fight the ten per cent cut in recovery funds voted by the Appropriations committee.

After approving the overall appropriation figure the Senate moved into a major battle over the purchase of $2,000,000,000 worth of surplus American farm products in the foreign aid program.

Program Crossroads Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman has told Senators the vote on this issue may decide the success or failure of the European Recovery Program in the coming year.

The dispute is over one of five amendments tagged onto the Foreign Aid bill by the Senate appropriations committee.

Democratic leaders beat back one of the amendments late yesterday and reluctantly agreed to accept another—one chopping $419,820,000 off the total funds asked for the program. But they promised a fight to the finish against the remaining changes—including the one up for discussion today.

This one would require ECA to spend about $1,500,000,000, and the army another $500,000,000, for surplus farm products. Both agencies would be required to buy commodities in the amount and of the kind listed in their budget estimates.

And if they don't—the money could not be used for any other purpose.

Arms Problem Faced Secretary of State Acheson appealed to Congress today to suspend judgment on the $1,450,000,000 Foreign Arms Aid Bill until all the evidence is in.

Acheson told a news conference that points raised on the program by several members of Congress are sound in their theory but that they talked in a misapprehension of the facts.

Evidently referring to the suggestion of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) that only an interim plan should be adopted now, Acheson said it was a good idea to have an interim program.

But he declared that is exactly (Please turn to Page Two)

New Steel Plant For Middletown

MIDDLETOWN, July 27—(AP)—Armco Steel Corp. announced yesterday it will begin construction immediately of a $12,000,000 steel plant south of the company's east works plant here.

The new plant will have a capacity of 400,000 tons of steel ingots a year. It will employ more than 500 workers when operations begin.

It will consist of three 225-ton open hearth furnaces of the latest design. There will also be several miles of railroad tracks, pipe lines, high tension wires and other equipment.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—Trading guns for time, with the emphasis on time.

That's the core of president Truman's request to congress for arms for this country's Allies.

The state department—backing him up with a 41-page booklet explaining his request in detail—says:

"Our assistance must reach its destination in time to achieve its purpose."

Why the speed? The thinking goes like this:

This country's Allies, particularly in western Europe, have been trying to recover from the war, with our help.

They've been making progress but their recovery will remain jittery and incomplete so long as they're afraid of Russia.

Says the state department: "Beneath the confidence that the present degree of recovery has engendered, there is a pervasive fear that the gains may be swept away by aggression on the part of the Soviet Union."

That "aggression" could take several forms. For one, direct attack. Right now Russia is in so much better shape, militarily, it could overrun the western European countries.

There's another form of aggression. That's Russian pressure without a shot being fired. For example:

Under pressure from heavily-armed Russia, an unarmed west-attack if it didn't agree—might let its own native Communists take over.

President Truman made that point pretty clear in his message to congress Monday:

"The nations of western Europe have not been able to ignore the necessity of a military defense for themselves."

"They have seen what the Soviet Union has done to nations (in eastern Europe) for which it professed friendship and with which it has recently Allied."

"They have observed how a Communist coup d'etat, operating in the shadow of the massed military might of the Soviet Union, can overthrow, at one stroke, the democratic liberties and the political independence of a friendly nation."

He was referring to Czechoslovakia, of course. That country's frontier adjoins Russia's. Czechoslovakia's own Communists got themselves into key positions in the government.

Then, when they felt the time was right grabbed the whole government, with Russia standing by, watching. Immediately, Czechoslovakia became a Russian puppet.

But suppose we send a western European power arms and, in some way, Communists legitimately are elected to office by the people of that country, putting them in a position to grab control.

Suppose then they do grab it, taking over the government and the arms we sent that country, and then ally themselves with Russia, as they would. They could use our own arms against us.

What then? Mr. Truman didn't supply an answer for that one, at least directly.

But the whole aim of his message, asking money of congress for arms for Allies was this:

If those countries recover economically, the people of those countries won't have to elect Communists to find a solution for their poverty, because there won't be poverty.

But, unless those countries have arms to stand off Russia, they'll remain so jittery they won't recover economically—at least completely—and, unless they do, the door is left open to the Communists.

So, he reasons, the way to block the Communists, inside and outside a country, is to help it economically and militarily as soon as possible.

Residents Urged To Start 'Friends of Land' Chapter Here

Friends of the Land, an organization whose aim is conservation of natural resources and wildlife picked up some support Tuesday night at the dinner meeting of the Lions Club.

Inspiration was given to the Lions by one of the sparkplugs of the organization, Dr. Jonathan Forman, vice president.

The inimitable wit of Forman was employed to describe for Lions the work of the Friends of the Land and point out the need for people everywhere getting behind the move.

Dr. Forman advised the residents of Fayette County to "organize themselves as a community to the end that every foot of land in the county is made as rich and productive as possible."

The nationally known speaker, author and medical authority said there is great need for an organization here which "can restore the virgin fertility of the soil, and do away with sickness and disease."

Urges County Action
"Unless the leaders of Washington C. H. and Fayette County are willing to mobilize the whole county... Friends of the Land is not interested in expending its energies on the trading area," the speaker declared.

He said he hoped that the county's residents would be sufficiently awakened to the need for "permanent prosperity and good health" to establish "a working chapter of the Friends of the Land here."

Dr. Forman said: "We can't biles unless the farmer can raise them," he declared.

The speaker advised of the need to conserve water, pointing out that farmers can help if they employ farm planning on their farms.

He stressed the fact that people of the United States should get away from the idea that the government can give them everything—health and conservation included.

Dr. Forman said its a community job, everybody working together, educating others to the need for conserving our natural resources and wildlife.

Considerable interest was shown by Lions Club members in the work of the Friends of the Land. After Dr. Forman's speech several availed themselves of an opportunity to read books and pamphlets which he brought with him.

The speaker was introduced by Robert Minshall. Guests at the meeting included Ollie E. Fink, executive secretary of Friends of the Land; William Hook, Charles Grace and Ralph Penn.

Lions volunteered for jobs selling race programs at the Fair and were assigned various days.

New School Course

Jimmy loved sports and tried out for the basketball team but couldn't make it and took to brooding about his short height. Ellen, who always made high marks, came across a question she couldn't answer on the exam and cheated for the first time. Virginia was never asked to parties and didn't know why, so she kept to herself and brooded about it.

These are problems that mean a lot to youngsters and, because they endure it rather than try to solve it by talking it over and making their own decision helps to cause this condition.

Of every 100 school children in the U. S., 13 will grow up emotionally immature. Four will become mental patients. One will turn to crime and eight will suffer emotional breakdowns.

Helping children to adjust themselves emotionally is probably the main purpose of the Human Relations course which was developed under the Delaware State Society for Mental Hygiene. It is used for children in the age groups of 11 to 14 years, because it was felt they discuss their problems more freely.

Schools in New York, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Oakland and other cities in California, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Canada and even Honolulu, are using the textbooks in their curriculum as well as 71 Delaware schools.

The list of users shows no Ohio schools, which makes Fayette County the pioneer in this state.

Sup. Hilty plans to offer the course on a purely voluntary basis for a half-year trial period. It will be turned over to the school heads and only those teachers interested in helping children and qualified by experience will be accepted as volunteers to teach the course.

The topic of Human Relations will be scheduled for twice a week, alternating in the place of established courses.

Hilty feels that "the Human Relations course will help children to face many of life's problems, to make decisions more readily, to accept responsibility more easily, to meet unexpected changes without too much embarrassment, to bring their emotional problems out into the open rather than to repress them, to make compromises when necessary, and to be better able to carry on when failure is met."

"How Personality Traits Develop," "Making Difficult Decisions," "Cooperating with Others" and "Losing Gracefully" are but a few of the topics covered in the course.

Danger From Some Low Flying Airplanes

Within the past few weeks we have heard quite a number of people complaining about the danger from airplanes which in some cases have swooped over house-tops and buildings in Washington C. H. within a couple of hundred feet or less of the tops of roofs.

Low-flying airplanes continue to be either a persistent or a periodic annoyance to the city and rural dweller alike. The occasional accidents caused by such craft do nothing to allay the fears felt by the man on the ground when a plane skims by a few hundred feet above his head and house. And during the time the low flier is in the neighborhood there's not much point in trying to carry on a conversation, listen to the radio, read, or do much else.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has rules about such things, and many states and local communities have their own laws to protect residents from the danger and annoyance of low-flying planes. The trouble is in enforcing the rules and laws. The time may yet come when the pilot who is violating the altitude limit just a little bit will be startled to see a cop come sailing out from behind an innocent looking cloud.

Atomic Problems

The first really big problem of the international aspects of atomic energy control, since the period immediately after the end of the war, has created a very obvious stir in Washington. This is the question of whether additional secret information shall be given to Great Britain. Bound up with it are the whole relationship between the two nations, the share of America in the uranium supplies of the Belgium Congo, the possibility of an atomic energy cartel rising on the continent of Europe, and future political alignments in Europe.

Thus it can be seen that the question of exchanging atomic energy information with the British is a complex and far-reaching one. But it is only the beginning of the questions which must inevitably stem from the atomic bomb. These questions are terribly serious. If they are answered rightly, that dreamed-of balance of strength might be achieved which would make war forever impossible.

The explosiveness which will be characteristic of all international relations as long as the atomic bomb hangs overhead is terrifying. It would be far better to find and eliminate the factors in human relations which lead to war, but that has been tried and given up by every previous generation.

There is a possibility that the atomic bomb, the most murderous weapon ever devised, might force the world to peace. The knowledge of its threat might drive the present generation to find the long-sought secret of peace.

It's foolish to argue that the law has no heart... look how easily the sheriff may develop an attachment to your new car.

Radio descriptions of baseball games offer a perfect example of suspense in three words. "Here's the pitch!"

Civilization is an everlasting process of moving ahead. There are ups and downs and backsets, but the general movement is slowly forward.

Seeing New York For First Time

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(P)—So you're coming to visit New York this summer for the first time?

And your ailing rich uncle hasn't died yet and left you his money, so you have to travel on your own skinny pocketbook? And you want to know whether anybody can come here and have fun on a small budget?

Brother, at least 7,000,000 of the people who live here will tell you "yes"—with some qualifications.

You can do it if you have a real curiosity to see and know as much as you can of this circus too big to put under canvas. But if your idea of heaven is to sipmer at gilded celebrities in plush supper clubs night after night—why, better wait until your uncle dies.

The best things in New York—its wonderful window displays, its famous streets, its tremendous views—cost little or nothing to see. And the people, the fabulous, fabulous people of this fabulous city, they are the best show of all—and free.

But there is a time to see things best. Go at the right time for each.

Got out to Coney Island on a steaming Sunday and see humanity on the half shell. That is still the New York that O. Henry wrote about. And so is the Bowery and Chinatown—and the edge of Greenwich village. It's best to see them at night, and the subway will take you to any of those places for a dime.

But let's start at the beginning. When you get off your train or bus, treat yourself to a cab ride to your hotel. If you don't know a good, clean reasonably-priced one, ask the hackie. Unless you give him the idea you're just in from Fort Knox, Kentucky, he'll steer you straight.

Even though your budget is tight you can still work it so that you eat at least once in a big-name restaurant, see a Broadway play and take in a fine concert. Timing is important in these things too.

Go to the restaurant at lunch. The prices are usually scaled lower at mid-day—and you are just as likely to see a celebrity then. Hit the theater boxoffices half an hour before curtain time. At all except the top musicals or "Death of a Salesman" you'll probably be able to pick up a pair of tickets. "A Streetcar Named Desire" is now advertising good seats available for all performances, and my wife says it's the best play in town.

If you're a music lover, you can listen to some of the world's best talent at evening concerts under the stars at Lewisohn stadium. And the prices, tax paid, range from thirty cents to $2. Major league baseball isn't too high. Go to see the Dodgers play at night—then you won't have to add the cost of a bottle of sunburn lotion to the price of your bleacher seat.

Don't fail to go up to the top of the Empire State Building. Take a trip through Rockefeller center. See the Rockettes in the Radio City Music Hall. Ride the ferry to Staten Island and enjoy the greatest view and the longest over-water ride on the globe for a nickel. All are good buys.

But walking and gawking are the finest fun here if your arches are strong. Stroll through the garment district any week day at noon; Wall Street, deserted on a Saturday afternoon; and Times Square on Saturday night, the biggest country town in America.

Be blasé as you meander along ritzy Park Avenue. Don't try to rescue a lady if she appears to be choking to death in a milk coat. She's happy—and what better way can a lady die. Once I saw a lady leading a deer along there and nobody turned to look twice. Should you see an octopus on Park Avenue leading Greta Garbo in chains, don't stare. Everybody'll know you're from out of town.

Two final important tips: (1) Don't change any $2 (or $20) bills for strangers. (2) When in doubt about anything, ask a cop. If you can't understand him, ask again. He may be from Brooklyn.

Price Is Britain's Key Problem

By George E. Sokolsky

When the British say that they are short of dollars, they mean that they are unable to sell enough goods in dollar markets. Their hope is that the United States will make up the lag as a gift. Why are they unable to sell enough goods in dollar markets? Because they have outpriced themselves. As competition is being restored to world trade, the British find that they have priced their exports—in dollars—beyond the willingness of customers to buy, particularly as the customers can get goods of the same or better quality at cheaper prices.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, just returning from a visit to England, reports: "Since high-priced English goods can not compete in the export market, the labor-socialist plan is not to make the goods genuinely competitive but to eliminate the competition. For this they have two devices. The first is bilateral agreements between England and other countries which will exclude competitors. Such agreements will be largely at the expense of the United States. The second device is the now-familiar one of loans or gifts from the United States, the proceeds of which can be used in part to absorb any loss-selling necessary to achieve the export of English goods. This, of course, will be entirely at the expense of the United States.

"Any further grants from the United States to England will have the same effect as those already made. They will simply serve to sustain artificially for a while longer a situation which is intrinsically wrong and a drag on the economy of the entire western world. After the war, we gave England $3,750,000,000 in a lump sum which was expected to finance the country over its reconstruction period. The labor-socialist government used up this entire amount in a little over one year's time. Then the so-called Marshall Plan arrived. Its purpose was to give England and other European countries sufficient financial aid to take care of them and offset their shortages of dollars through 1952 by which time they were expected to achieve a self-supporting basis. England has been the principal beneficiary of this plan. Despite this tremendous outpouring of United States wealth plus income from exports and mounting taxation of her own people, England, in the 15 months of the Marshall Plan, has depleted her gold and dollar reserves by more than 25 percent. And the United States is being asked to make up this deficiency."

England's real difficulty is that, her leaders are attempting to operate partial Socialism without imposing the political limitations upon the individual which Russia has proved is essential for Socialism in any form. In a word, a mixed economy does not work even with American subsidies, and Socialism in any form or degree will not work without slavery.

Mr. Weir also makes this comment:

"... In 1948, cash disbursements to Great Britain against grants and credits from the United States amounted to $1,110,000,000, or 36 percent of total foreign aid. Great Britain spends on her elaborate welfare program approximately 900,000,000 pounds per year, which is more than three times the amount of aid received from the United States in 1948. When it is considered that these welfare expenditures equal 25 percent of the British government's total expenditures, it is obvious that in this item alone there must be room for reduction that would permit Britain to lessen substantially the weight of her burden on the United States."

The question naturally arises: how much longer can the United States go on giving to Great Britain and what will happen to that country if we should stop aiding her? The obvious answer is too tragic. Britain's only answer is to reduce buying in the United States and to ask her dominions to reduce their purchases here. That has the same effect as erecting a tariff wall against the United States. And at that point, what becomes of the reciprocal trade agreements?

If Great Britain can knock down the reciprocal trade agreements at will, why should the United States continue them? In a word, British Socialism attacks the United States economically while almost demanding that we subsidize the attacks. Does it make sense?

Disorders of Skin Should Be Watched

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CERTAIN skin disorders which commonly afflict children are highly contagious. They spread rapidly from child to child until an entire group is infected unless the disease is recognized in its first victim and steps are taken to separate him from his schoolmates.

One such condition which parents should be able to identify promptly is impetigo. Its first manifestation is a rash of skin blisters. These blisters break and form crusts or scales which may vary in color from yellow to red. They may be more than an inch across, but they are usually small. The skin of the face, ears, neck and, often, the hands are affected. Sometimes the disorder develops in the scalp. As a rule, it causes no itching, burning or pain.

Due to Germs

It is due to impetigo is due to germs which are normally present, to some extent, on the skin of all persons. The germs get into the skin where the surface is broken due to a scratch or cut. Picking the face with dirty fingernails may lead to the development of the condition.

It is often noted that impetigo may develop in a child with a discharging ear. Frequently several children in the family are affected if they use a common towel or washcloth, or play together.

In preventing impetigo, cleanliness is important. Children should be taught not to pick at the skin.

and every child should have his own towel, washcloth, comb and brush. One attack of impetigo is no protection against future occurrence of the disease.

Proper Treatment

Fortunately, this condition can be promptly cleared up with proper treatment. Ointments of ammoniated mercury are frequently helpful. During the first few days of treatment, the child should be kept at home and away from other children in order to prevent the disease from spreading.

There is another form of impetigo which occurs in infants, particularly those in newborn nurseries. In this disorder, as a rule, the blisters break and leave raw surfaces; scabs do not form. Epidemics of impetigo can quickly spread through the nursery; hence, it is important that the first case be diagnosed early and properly treated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. F.: I have pouches under my eyes. What causes this?

Answer: Puffiness under the eyelids frequently comes from lack of rest and sleep. The disorder may be due to some disturbance in the water balance of the body. Some individuals have tissue which holds more water than others, and it is this collection of fluid in the body which causes puffiness under the eyes.

There is no need to worry about this matter, for the condition can cause no trouble.

Elmer the Bull Rescued from Pipe 600 Lbs. Lighter

SWOPE, Va., July 27—(P)—Elmer the bull lost 600 pounds in 21 days—no bull.

Elmer got trapped in a railroad culvert pipe, where he'd gone to escape the heat. Rocks washed up behind him, blocking the way out, and there Elmer stood for three weeks, up to his shanks in water.

Railroad workers found him Thursday in the 36-inch pipe, a mere shadow of himself at an undernourished 300 pounds. Around his famished waist they wound a rope, hauled away and out came Elmer.

Elmer's astonished owner readily identified him as the year-and-a-half old Angus which had disappeared from his farm July 1. Then he put Elmer on a build-up diet of milk, eggs, wheat bran, cornmeal and other such delectables.

Elmer's doing fine, thank you. But his owner won't identify himself for publication.

"It's Elmer's story," he says.

Crude oil is carried to refineries through some 390,000 miles of steel pipe lines.

Annual Picnic Of Class Held At Kimmey Home

The members of the Shepherds Bible Class of the First Baptist Church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Myers Kimmey on Tuesday evening for the annual class picnic. One long table on the lawn decorated with low water-gardens of summer garden flowers at intervals, held the beautiful array of food served buffet fashion and smaller tables seated the group for a most congenial supper hour, with Rev. F. J. McCarty giving the invocation. Later a business session of the class was held and was presided over by Mr. Kenneth Chaney, president. Impressive devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Charles Hurtt. She read Scripture from the first chapter of second Timothy. Her subject was "Gifts From God," and she also read a meditation on this subject. Prayer by Rev. L. B. Rogers, closed the worship service. The usual monthly reports were heard and approved and it was voted to contribute $23 to the Rio Grande College, and $10 to a worthy family, along with a food shower. Mrs. Hurtt and Mrs. Earl Hopkins were appointed to be in charge of the food shower. Thirty-five calls were reported made on shut-ins during the past month. Rev. McCarty urged the members to visit the ministerial booth at the Fayette County Fair. The future heating system for the church was a topic for a panel discussion, and also an improvement in the church Baptistist. It was voted to dispense with the program and informal visiting of the 28 members and 14 guests present for the remainder of the evening.

Mrs. Kimmey had as her assisting hostesses, Miss Mildred Moss, Mrs. Jeanette Lindsey and Mrs. Robert West.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Simpson daughter, Karen Jean and son Donald Merlin of Ironton have returned to their home after a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Robinson and family.

Games were enjoyed on the beautiful picnic grounds and later the children were seated at one long table in the shelter house for the serving of the tempting viands. Two decorated birthday cakes centered the table and the color scheme was carried out in pastel colors with favors of crayons, balloons and lollipops, further carrying out the predominating theme found at each cover. Another round of games and the presenting of gifts to the small honor guest completed a perfect evening. Mrs. Hyer was assisted during the evening by Mrs. Ted Hyer, Mrs. Claude Eichelberger, of this city, Mrs. Melvin Dawson and Mrs. Glenn Conover of Springfield. Guests included were Sue Ann Babb, Nancy Dray, Betty Ellen Clarke, Jackie Plymire, Earl David Hopkins, Tommy Spettigue, Peter Pfersick, Tommy Rankin of this city, Audrey Jane Dawson of Springfield and Bobby Fultz of Columbus.

A short business session was presided over by Mrs. Raymond Emery. The usual reports were heard and members presented proceeds from their "experience dollar," which netted a tidy sum for the class treasury. Plans were also made for a rummage sale to be held in the church basement, Saturday August 27.

It was also decided to have a hamburger fry at the home of Mrs. Clifford Foster August 30, preceding the regular meeting. The meeting was closed with the class benediction. Mrs. Loren Reif and Mrs. Joe Campbell were in charge of an interesting contest with Mrs. Ed Richardson and Mrs. Raymond Emery receiving the awards. Later the members of the class motored to Bloomingburg to extend their sympathy to Mrs. John Glenn and son John in the death of Rev. Glenn.

Rotarians Hear 'Land Friends' Speaker Tuesday

Soil Conservation
Need Stressed By
Ollie E. Fink

Rotarians got an insight into the work of the "Friends of the Land" Tuesday when the secretary and program director of the group, Ollie E. Fink, spoke to them.

Fink warned that unless soil in this country were conserved the people would someday find themselves unable to eke out a living from worn-out land.

The speaker quoted Van Loon as saying: "The history of man is the story of a hungry animal in search of food."

He said the city folks should be even more concerned with conservation than the farmer since they are fed with the farmer's surpluses.

"If there is no farm surplus—there is no city," the speaker told the Rotarians.

He said business, labor and industry depend on the products of the soil for a living to the most part.

Fink declared: "The farmer eats first—and farm production beyond the needs of the farmer and his family, is a surplus."

The speaker related how the farmer has been able to harvest his crops with fewer farm hands than he could years ago.

Farms Mechanical
"One farmer with his tractor, his combine and other mechanical slaves provides for four of us," the speaker explained.

Through the years, the speaker pointed out, the population of the world has steadily climbed until it is now estimated at two and a quarter million.

Fink said in another 25 years it is estimated that the population will reach three billion.

"If I should return to this meeting tomorrow," the speaker said, "the world will have made one additional 24-hour turn on the axis and left 25,000 additional hungry mouths that are not here at this time."

Farm Planning Needed
The speaker stressed the importance of conservation through farm planning by saying:

"On the basis of individual case studies it seems reasonably certain that if a sound well-planned farming program were to be put into effect on as much as one-third of the land in the average county, the new production, valued at average pre-war prices would amount to as much as $1,000,000 a year."

Present at the Rotarians dinner meeting as guests were Robert Blosser, farm planner for the U. S.

Soil Conservation Service in Fayette County, and E. L. Cunningham, of Washington C. H., who is vitally interested in conservation. The two men were guests of W. W. Montgomery, county extension agent.

Paul Pennington, new president of Rotary, presided over the meeting. There were visiting Rotarians from Greenfield, Birmingham, Mich. and Greenville.

Ambrose Elliott, new president of the Lions Club, was the guest of Ralph Penn, Rotarian.

After the speech several Rotarians expressed interest in joining the Friends of the Land, an organization which is devoted to the conservation of natural resources and wildlife.

Some of the Rotarians signed up for memberships with the organization while others indicated they would at a later date.

Kroger Building Nears Completion

The new Kroger Supermarket building on West Court Street, is rapidly nearing completion, and will be ready for occupancy, within the next few weeks.

The large structure, built of cement and steel, with tan-colored tile walls, is attractive, and is built with a view to displaying large stocks, give ample space for buyers, and permit handling of goods to the best advantage.

The unloading platform is in the rear, and much parking space is available on the west side of the building.

At present work of placing the steel ceiling and finishing the sidewalls, is under way.

Fair Board Members Planning To Retire

Three directors of the Greene County Agricultural Society, sponsors of the Greene County Fair, whose terms expire this year, have announced their retirement from the organization.

Their successors will be elected at an early meeting.

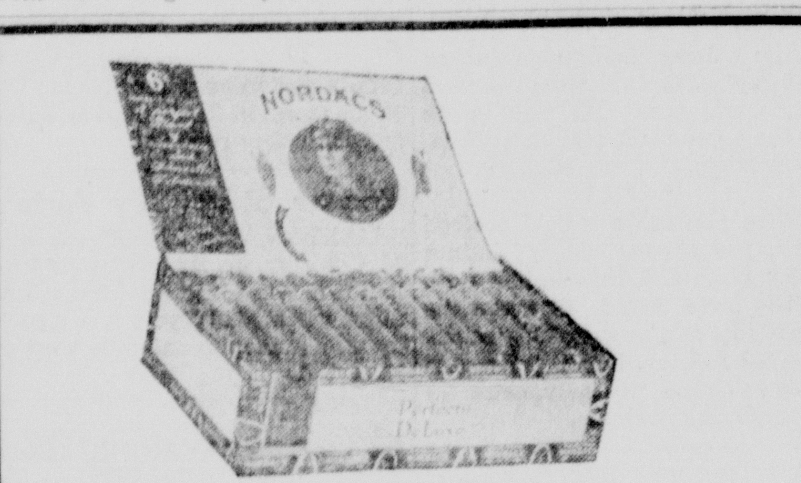

Those resigning are: U. G. Bell, treasurer, and director for 30 years, Mrs. L. H. Jones and Ernest Jenks.

Mrs. Dorothy West, of the county clerk's office, swore in 54 Bloomingburg Lions as deputies so that they could handle their jobs with the authority needed.

Highlight of the evening was the showing of "Fighting Lady," an official navy film depicting life aboard an American aircraft carrier during World War II.

The club stood in honor to Rev. John Glenn, pastor of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Church, who died Sunday. A prayer was offered by Rev. Guy Tucker.

Announcement was made at the dinner-meeting that the losers of a contest to sell merchandise at two sales sponsored by the Bloomingburg Lions Club would stage a picnic for the winners August 1 at the home of E. N. Leonard.

Don King was named tail twister, Don Hawk, Lion tamer and Arthur Engle, bulletin editor. The changes in office were made since Robert Moyer, who has been both tail twister and bulletin editor, will be out of town this fall.

Shotgun Blast Fatal To Two-Year-Old Boy

AKRON, July 27—(P)—Police said Gerald Thornton, 2, was killed accidentally by a shotgun blast apparently fired by his four-year-old brother. The victim was playing on a bed upstairs while his brother, Dennis, was on the floor, Det. Sgt. Howard Turner said. The children are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Thornton. Thornton placed the loaded gun in the room after hearing prowlers Saturday, Turner said.

Couple Charged With Illegal Sale of Liquor

HAMILTON, July 27—(P)—Justice of the Peace Otto Grafner last night continued for two weeks a hearing for Miss Lena Morrical and Floyd Hughes, of Oxford on charges of illegal possession and sale of liquor. The couple was arrested Sunday by state agents in a raid at the Wade Lodge Mill near Venice.

tion of Dayton. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dietz of Dayton.

Putting Shoes on Race Horses Requires Both Work and Skill

J. H. Coleman puts shoe on Black Anne

Making the shoes and putting them on race horses is more than sweat and brawn—it is a science backed by skill and know-how gained through the years in the tough school of experience.

Success of many a horse on the race track depends on the man who made and shod it.

The shoes not only must fit; they must be the right weight and have the proper balance.

J. H. Coleman, a veteran shoer of race horses from London, makes most his shoes from strips of steel. They can be bought, but for the most part he likes to make his own. That way he can design each shoe for its special purpose.

At Fairground Here

Right now he is at the Fairground here shoeing scores of trotters and pacers that will go out during the four-day race program to thrill the packed grandstand.

But, while the crowd cheers, Coleman either will be forging a shoe to get a horse in the next race or watching the race from the fence. If he is watching the race, his interest will not be on the winner as on the performance of certain horses to see if his shoes gave them the right balance in their strides.

Coleman travels the fair circuit through the season. He gets to know many of the horses and their peculiarities, to know just where they need weight on their hoofs to keep their gaits smooth and fast.

He takes all of his equipment with him. Mounted on a light truck are his anvil and forge, ready for use in any emergency. They are set up in a tent whenever he locates for a fair.

What Of Future?

A man of few words (except to the horsemen), Coleman had little to say about his vocation. But, he did lay out one puzzle: who is going to shoe race horses a few years from now?

Coleman did not appear particularly concerned, himself, but there was no mistaking his feeling that shoeing race horses may become a lost art in the not too distant future.

"No young men are learning the trade," he said without emotion or further comment. He did not take his eyes off his work as he painstakingly nailed a handmade shoe on G. Damon Baker's 10-year-old mare, Black Anne.

There was no appearance of wealth about Coleman, but he has been doing all right for he gets from $8 to $14 for shoeing a horse, depending on how much special work has to be done to get the shoes balanced.

Incidentally, a set of shoes do not last a race horse very long.

Modern Kitchen Set Up for Demonstrations

Girls from many of the 4-H clubs in the county who have been learning by doing are going to show what they have learned in demonstrations as well as by exhibits at the Fair this week. The demonstrations, in which approximately 150 girls will take part, are to be held in a huge tent provided by the Dayton Power & Light Co.

There are more displays of the handiwork of the 4-H clubs than ever before this year, but it is the demonstrations that are expected to attract most interest because, not only are they something new, but also because they will show graphically just how the girls learn by doing and what they have learned.

Demonstrations are to be given by teams from clubs whose projects have been in cookery, sewing and home furnishing.

To carry out the cooking demonstrations the DP&L has set up a complete electric kitchen with the latest thing in equipment.

The DP&L also is to award the prizes to the winners in the demonstrations as part of the "Reaping the Harvest" program Friday night. This part of the night Fair is to be held in front of the grandstand. No grandstand admission is to be charged.

Mrs. Norma Campbell, who has been guiding the girls in the 4-H clubs with their projects, is to have charge of the demonstrations. She is the county's home demonstration agent of the agricultural extension service. In working with the clubs she is helped by the clubs' own advisors, usually mothers or big sisters of the club members.

Miss Patti Maddux, the home demonstration representative of the DP&L here, is to be in charge of kitchen equipment. Working in cooperation with Mrs. Campbell, Miss Maddux is to describe and explain equipment. She also is to answer questions before and after the demonstrations.

Miss Mary Wiseman of Lebanon is to be the judge in the demonstration competition.

Cheaper Tires Now in Offing

Synthetic Rubber Requirement Eased

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—The commerce department has moved to help manufacturers lower production cost of tires—one of the few products now selling at less than pre-war prices.

The action was an easing of the amounts of synthetic rubber required to be used in making certain tires and tubes.

Officials told a reporter the move will enable manufacturers to use more of cheaper raw materials. Natural rubber prices recently dropped to about 16½ cents for a pound compared with 18½ for synthetic.

The requirements for using synthetic rubber were designed to provide a market and support for the war-time created U. S. industry. This helped to keep it going as a factor in national security.

Officials said the changes also are intended to give tire-makers "greater flexibility in planning production by permitting freedom of choice in a larger amount of new rubber they consume."

One change permits the bigger (7.50 cross section and larger) truck and bus tires to be made without any synthetic rubber. Formerly they had to contain an average of three percent synthetic.

Another change makes it unnecessary to use synthetic for bicycle tires.

A third change cuts the amount of butyl synthetic rubber which must be used in certain inner tubes to a minimum of 45 percent. Previously, manufacturers were required to use at least 60 percent.

From a production planning standpoint a major change was in the grouping of tire sizes required to be made with specified percentages of synthetic.

Groupings are important because of each group the regulations say a certain overall average of synthetic must be used, but a considerably smaller than average percentage of synthetic will suffice for individual items in the group.

Under the changes, there will be these two groups:

1. All passenger, motorcycle and front tires for farm and garden tractors, plus all tires from 7.50 cross section down used on busses, farm and garden implements, and industrial vehicles. All these types of tires must have a minimum of five percent synthetic in each individual tire, while the minimum average for the group will be 45 percent synthetic.

2. Rear tires for farm tractors and all other farm implements. Individual tires must have as much as 55 percent synthetic and the group average will be 80 percent.

The department estimated its action may cut usage of butyl synthetic by about 7,000 long tons, dropping the required consumption of butyl to about 33,000 tons. Another 7,000 tons less of general purpose synthetic rubber also may be used in tire making.

Reas Win Star Game; Legion Beats DP&L

The All-Stars of the Knothole League clashed under the lights last night and when the dust cleared, the "Reas" were far and away the winners by a 7 to 4 score.

In the nightcap, DP&L took a three run lead in the first but Paul Hughey Post turned on the heat in the fourth and fifth to rack up eight runs and win by 9-4.

Norman Crosswhite proved himself an all-star as he took the mound for the Reas and, with good fielding by his mates, held the Steelers to one hit. He also smashed out a home run to ice the game for his side. Milstead, his battery mate, starred by slamming out a double and homer.

Michael, playing rightfield for the Steelers, got his team's only hit, saving them from suffering a no-hitter.

Senators Transferred From Here To Ashville

The Washington C. H. Senators now call Ashville "home."

The move from here was a surprise only because the recent warning of moving the club was looked upon by some as idle talk.

All the remaining home games of the Washington C. H. team will be transferred to Ashville beginning with the doubleheader against Lancaster Sunday. The team's name will not be changed.

The decision to leave here came only after much serious discussion and consideration of fans who have loyally supported the team, according to Bob Bailey, secretary of the SCO League. The move has been approved by the league, he added.

The extreme heat was blamed as being largely responsible for keeping the attendance so low that the team was becoming very discouraged.

The situation is unfortunate, said Bailey, since this team is one of the best ball clubs to represent Washington C. H. since the days of the old Athletics. They turned down a chance to enter national competition for high stakes at Wichita, Kansas.

Managed by Carl Noon, the Washington C. H. team is in an excellent position to cop the spoils that fall to the winner of the playoffs between the league-leaders at the end of two rounds of play.

The Senators finished the first round in a first-place tie with Chillicothe, sporting a six and two record. Each team has two rain-out games to play off. One of these will be the first game of Sunday's doubleheader.

Chillicothe meets a strong Jeffersonville club which could help nail down the playoffs for Washington C. H. by taking the first game Sunday. It was postponed from the first round.

The Senators are currently running third in the second round with a record of one and one. They will clash with Lancaster, unbeaten in two games, at 1:30 P. M. Sunday at their new Ashville site.

Their followers here are invited to continue to follow the team, which appreciates their interest and is leaving here reluctantly, Bailey said.

Recalling that some people thought the "faster" brand of ball in the SCO League kept less experienced boys from getting a crack at good baseball, Bailey defended the league.

"Our league has served the less experienced group to a far greater extent by stimulating the organization of more leagues over a wider area," replied Bailey.

"During the past four years," he pointed out, "20 players from various SCO teams have 'graduated' into professional ball and 14 of them have made the grade and stuck."

He said that Robinett, a product of Washington C. H. High School and now first sacker for the Senators, is a good bet to attract the attention of baseball scouts by his excellent defensive play.

"And every team in the league has a Robinett," said Bailey, who feels that future major leaguers get their polishing in leagues of this type before moving up.

75 to 1 Shot Wins Feature at Goshen

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me.,

July 27—(P)—A 75 to 1 shot, Scotch Dean, won the first heat of the $7,500 Pine Tree Trot at the Kite Track yesterday, paying $156.30, $55.50 and $25.50.

The eight race card opened the grand circuit's one week stand here. Another eight dashes were run off last night.

Fred Egan reined Scotch Dean to victory after the favorites, Honor Bright and 'Lusty Song, broke near the start. Lusty Song, with Doc Parshall in the sulky, came back to take the second heat.

As in all the two-heat stake races, the purse was divided and each heat treated as a separate race.

E. P. Cray's White Mountain Boy, a double winner in the $5,000 Canadian pace, did the second mile in 2:01 2-5. The roan colt from Bellows Falls, Vt., equalled the year's best mile by a three-year-old pacer—Royal Blackstone, at Fairmount Park, Ill., in May.

Handicap Golf Crown Won by Frank Baker

Frank Baker today wears the crown of the handicap golf champion of the Washington C. H. Country Club.

The hard-hitting, straight-shooting Baker nudged out Marvin Thornburg on the 19th hole after coming from behind and forcing the match into one over the regulation route.

In a match that was close all the way, Thornburg was one up at the end of the first nine-hole round.

Baker gradually whittled away that difference as they played on just about even terms for hole after hole. He could have pocketed the title on the 18th, but missed a 3-foot putt that left them tied. Then he went on to win on the extra hole.

Baker had a handicap of 9. Thornburg's was one. Thus, Baker had to spot Thornburg only one stroke.

On the way to the championship, Baker knocked off Bill Allen (default), Bob Miller, Cecil Vanbrunt (7:30 P. M.) and Welding School vs Drake's.

THURSDAY—(No games)

FRIDAY—Cedarville Merchant Girls vs W. C. H. Girls (7:30 P. M.) and Xenia Standard Parts vs Universal.

MONDAY—Universal vs NCR (7:30 P. M.) and DP&L vs Homer Lawson.

Kids Puff Through Races In Spite of Heat Here Tuesday

Kids from Rose Avenue and Sunnyside schools ran, stumbled and puffed their way through some exciting races which the City Recreation Department dreamed up for them Tuesday at Gardner Park.

And when it was all over, the youngsters were happy in spite of the "muggy" heat, for all the participants got popsicles and the winners received prizes through the courtesy of the recreation department.

The outcome of the contests gave Sunnyside an edge, although the affair was mostly an individual competition.

Dane Hickson and Jimmie Cutlip, both of Sunnyside, came out winners of one of the most difficult contests, the three-legged race.

An old stand-by, the sack race, was won by Norman Wilson of Rose Avenue (larger boys division) and Larry Burnett of Sunnyside (smaller boys division).

Other results were:
Wheelbarrow race (smaller boys), Phillip Johnson and Jimmie Cutlip of Sunnyside, and (older boys) Dave Hickson and Richard Hickson, both of Sunnyside.

Potato race (smaller boys) Raymond Snyder of Rose Avenue and (older boys) Francis Wilson of Rose Avenue.

Slow bicycle race, Dave Hickson, Sunnyside.

CHAPTER THIRTY

MARVELL stood waiting for the elevator that would take him to Ben's office on the twelfth floor. The severity of the lobby, the austerity of the elevator "boys"—all of whom might have served as chaplains in the Civil War, Marvell reflected—never failed to qualify the cockiness of his arrival. There was no use being impatient, the elevators rose and descended according to some mysterious ritual presided over by the "elevator boys," sideburned starters. So Marvell turned his eye on a young man who had been staring at the directory for some minutes. He was "rather thin and tall and his general attitude of indifference, as well as the overcoat he wore, gave Marvell the idea that he was an ex-soldier. Someone had tried to dye the coat, not too successfully, a navy blue. They got into the elevator together and stepped off at the same floor. The young man seemed uncertain of the uniform doors with their discreet black or gold lettering that extended to his right and left. He gave Marvell a tight little smile. "Is 1214 this way? I've never been here before."

"Must be; I'm going to 1206." They turned left together and their footsteps resounded heavily in the cold corridor. "Not lively, is it?" murmured the young man. "Well, you can't expect too much," chuckled Marvell. "They're all occupied with the past or the future."

"I'm not," said his companion, almost defiantly. Marvell stopped before the frosted glass marked "Raynesford, Higham and Hall."

"Just back from overseas?" he asked sympathetically. "Yesterday." The young man removed his hat and Marvell saw the thick dark red hair and the dark eyebrows that lifted in surprise at his question. "Well, good luck," said Marvell with a smile, opening the silent, well-oiled door. On these periodic visits, he was always led immediately into one of the many little parlors, furnished with polished chairs and tables, which made up the hive of activity in which Ben flourished. Here were drawn up in dignified privacy the articles of incorporation, the trusts, the final testaments. Marvell had been coming regularly every six months since the end of the war for a check-up of his statements as trustee, executor, whatever he was supposed to be in the line of duty, and to make, also, a public accounting of his own business affairs. It increased his sense of dignity to talk with Ben on an impersonal business level and it also gave him the freedom of Boston for a whole day. He usually spent it among the wholesalers in the North End where he bought his supplies, reading engineering news in the library, watching the progress of whatever city construction was going on, occasionally making friends with the boss on the job. This attention to professional detail gave him the feeling he was somehow engaged in important work, and though he often saw through the delusion when he returned to Colorado and the simpler jobs of plumbing and repairing, it buoyed him for the time being. He wished Ben would hurry up for he wanted to get on with his own day. He thought again of the young man he'd just bumped into. Back yesterday. If I were returning after at least three years of war, what would I think of this year, of this place? A new decade sounded promising but it had begun with the threat of the Volstead Act and blown up in the middle with a local explosion in South Braintree—would near-beer mean anything to a boy like that? Or the names Sacco and Vanzetti? For that matter did it mean anything to Ben, he wondered, as he rose to shake hands with him. Ben carried a portfolio of papers and a ledger bound in gray cloth. His glasses swung from the black cord and his waistcoat was piped with a white braid, a touch that Marvell understood, now, marked a special meeting of directors or overseers.

"To had to leave the country on such a glorious fall day, Marvell," Ben greeted him. "It must be lovely out there now." "No east wind, warmer than here," Marvell agreed. "First, your signature for these, and then I'll be glad to go over your books."

As he watched Marvell read over each document before signing, a procedure of which he highly approved, Ben admitted to himself that he couldn't puzzle him out. His attention to every detail, his almost childish insistence that Ben's accountant go over the books of his business in Colorado, the new interest with which he followed political and economic headlines—too liberal an interest for Ben—the distance he kept between them personally, due to Proctor, no doubt, though it was so unnecessary, struck Ben as being most unusual. The man had changed. And he could not give much praise to Prohibition, either, for it had been in force less than a year. Just after the Armistice, Ben remembered it well, because his office had been closed, of course, and Marvell had come all the way down to see him and had returned the following day. "Marvell had set up this new routine. First he had apologized for the party, which Ben had almost forgotten. Actually, Ben realized with some regret, he had given Marvell up as a bad case. Then he had sought information of his own affairs and Kit's. Ben's approval had been so warm that he had ventured to speak of Proctor, but Marvell froze up. "I shall never discuss him with anyone. I prefer you not to mention him again."

Marvell had blotted the papers and was now waiting for him. "How is Kit?" asked Ben nervously, feeling that his thoughts were indiscreet even in this private cell. "Fine. Doing well in school. Very independent—" he smiled fondly. "She's got a marvelous memory and she's in a lot of plays."

"I wish you would bring her in to see us sometime," said Ben and meant it sincerely.

"When she's older, we'll be coming in to the theatre." Again that evasion of anything personal. "It's very good of Fanny to bother with her shopping. How are Fanny and the boys?"

"Fine, everything is fine but the world," said Ben cheerfully. "What's the matter with it?" Suddenly Marvell recalled the red-headed veteran who had defied the past and the future. It was his world more than Ben's.

"Well, we're rather deep in the woods, don't you think? Unemployment, costs are still high. And I don't like the vote for women."

"Why not?" "Actually, it's unfair. It gives many men two votes, so to speak. Fanny will ask my advice—so will most of the ladies. A democracy can't have carbon copies, you know."

Marvell roared. "That's the most complex legal thinking I've caught you at, yet. You just double your worth, Ben."

"There is the working class, said Ben reprovingly. "No matter you've managed well. We've gone over the inventory—it's remarkably low."

"I shopped around with the small jobbers," interrupted Marvell. "There's not much overhead, nor competition."

"You've managed well," Ben stubbornly insisted. "It's on a small scale but sound. Didn't you have trouble with labor during the boom?"

"Not much; sometimes I did a trade. I used inexperienced men, but now they're coming back, we'll lay low for a while and then—prices will rise high, Ben. And costs are going down. This isn't a bad time to buy. I am going to look around for an investment soon."

It was on the tip of Ben's tongue to invite him to lunch, but he decided against it. They might run into Proctor—no sense in creating an awkward scene. He'd have to get thoroughly over his anger. Ben had an idea that since the birth of Proctor's son, Proctor had cooled off somewhat in his righteous indignation against his brother-in-law. Not Marvell. That was a pity—the man was an excellent executive. Barlow and Abbott could have used him to perfection during the war and might again if, as Marvell said, there was a boom coming. Suddenly he had the impression that Marvell was an exceptionally good actor. That under this impersonal, independent tack of his, he was lonely out there in that backwash. "Your good neighbor, Miss Searle, hasn't returned?"

"No, and Kit's pretty disappointed. They were great friends." He was aware of the undue emphasis he had put on the last sentence. That was silly. He had no responsibility there, none whatsoever, he argued at he had before over and over. She had to get out of that rut sometime. And leave more room for me, he added, half amused. But, he thought fiercely, am I not sticking to this—this back-breaking trench digging, rut or not, that's the first line of defense in making Kit's brand new world.

Georgia Klan Mob Stopped with Gun

DONALSONVILLE, Ga., July 27—(AP)—The mayor of a south Georgia country town said today he beat off with gunfire a mob of Ku Klux Klansmen who tried to kidnap him.

Mayor C. L. Drake of nearby Iron City said "seven or eight automobiles loaded with uniformed and masked Klansmen" approached his house about 3 A. M. Sunday, July 17.

"I opened fire on them and they scattered in a hurry," he said. When they shot back they were too far away to do any harm.

Iron City is a town of about 500 persons in extreme southwest Georgia. It is about 15 miles from the Alabama line and about 35 miles from Florida.

B&O Engineer Suffers Attack

Diesel Operator Is Given Aid Here

Steve Puckett, Chillicothe, engineer on westbound B&O freight, No. 99, was stricken with a heart attack while at his post on the Diesel engine of the freight soon after leaving Columbus, Tuesday night, and was taken to the hospital here, given first aid by B&O surgeon Dr. J. H. Persinger, and later removed to his home, the Gerstner ambulance being used.

Puckett soon responded to a heart stimulant, and was somewhat improved before being taken to his home.

The fireman took over the engine until another engineer could be placed on the engine.

The train reached here at 2:30 A. M. and was met at the station by Dr. Persinger and the Gerstner ambulance.

When he was first stricken, Puckett believed it was a case of acute indigestion, but upon arriving here his ailment was pronounced coronary thrombosis.

Each Diesel has a crew of three men, and the engines are equipped with a "dead man pedal," and if the engineer's foot is removed from the pedal, the engine comes to a stop, railroad men state.

Man Is Fined and Given Works Term

Herman Rittenhouse, 22, of Buena Vista, was fined $25 and costs and given six months in the Cincinnati Workhouse, Tuesday, when he faced Justice of the Peace P. S. Ludwick, on a charge filed by William Toole, also of Buena Vista, charging him with pointing fire arms, making threats and choking a child.

Rittenhouse was arrested by Sheriff Orland Hays after Toole had appeared and told Sheriff Hays that Rittenhouse had broken down a door between their apartments, chased him out of the house with a shotgun, and mistreated the Toole baby.

Justice Ludwick suspended the workhouse sentence pending good behavior.

Vehicles Stolen At Fairgrounds

Sheriff Orland Hays is seeking thieves who stole a jog cart owned by G. D. Baker, and a new sulky, owned by Ernest Smith, which were stolen from the stable area at the Fairgrounds during Monday night.

A careful check is being made to round up the thieves and obtain return of the property.

Caution Pays Blast Proves

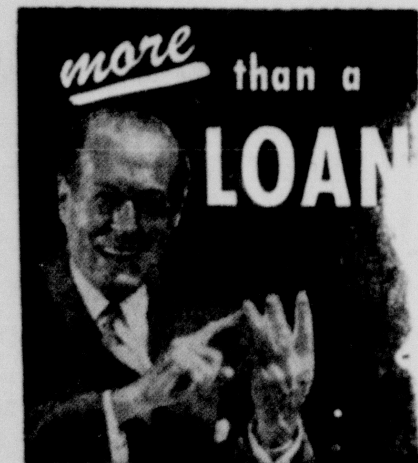

SHELBY, July 27—(AP)—Caution is more than just a word to Weldon Nye, a welder at nearby Tiro.

A customer brought him a 75-gallon steel drum yesterday to be repaired. Perfectly harmless, the customer told him.

Nye wasn't willing to take the customer's word for it. So he soaked a cloth in gasoline, tied it to the end of a long pole, set it afire and gingerly poked the drum.

An explosion blew out both ends of the drum, shook the village of 500 persons, knocked cans off shelves in a grocery across the alley, but injured no one.

Home sewers now can buy ready-made smocking for dress trimming. Saves hours of hand work, and looks about the same. Pockets are big news in fall fashions. Some designers use double or triple pockets for dress trimmings. Home dressmakers may copy the idea.

Grain Storage Facilities for Ohio Sought

COLUMBUS, July 27—(AP)—The president of the Ohio Farm Bureau appealed today to Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan for help in providing more adequate grain storage facilities in Ohio.

Robert S. Pelle told Brannan in a letter: "Ohio farmers now are receiving up to 35 cents a bushel less for the wheat they market than the loan rate provided by the Commodity Credit Corp. This situation exists because storage facilities are inadequate."

"It is our experience that Ohio wheat cannot ordinarily be stored successfully on the farm. Ohio farmers can and will provide strategically located storage facilities in Ohio, if government loans are made available which can be amortized over a long period of time."

"Unless farmers can provide some of their own storage, they will be at the mercy of the speculators who will manipulate the market for their own profit."

Pelle also reminded Brannan that John W. Sims, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, had filed a study of Ohio's grain storage situation with the secretary of agriculture in June.

New Bug Killer Ruins Rugs too

COLUMBUS, July 27—(AP)—Exterminators at Ohio State University's Department of Entomology have a powerful new "moth killing chemical." But they'd be too embarrassed to talk about it—if they could be found.

It seems the unidentified bug killers recently went over carpets and rugs in the campus home of Dr. Howard L. Bevis, university president. He's not sure how many moths they killed. But the potent chemical made the rugs and carpets look as if someone went berserk with a scissors.

The rugs are full of holes, including one nearly three feet wide right in the middle of the living room. Where the chemical touched tile in the bathroom, the finish also was damaged.

Anti-Poll Tax Bill Is Passed by House

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—An anti-poll tax bill was laid today on the Senate's doorstep, with indications that it would be abandoned there.

A 273 to 116 House vote sent it over, ignoring arguments by southern opponents that it and other civil rights bills are likely to bolster the Ku Klux Klan.

It was the fifth time in less than ten years that the House has gone through the formality of passing such a bill. Four times previously the Senate has refused to consider the bills in the face of threatened filibusters. The filibuster threat was raised again as the House passed the bill late yesterday. (Rep. Clarence Brown voted for the bill.)
